Florida Center for Excellence in Local Public Management – Update

The FCCMA Board of Directors approved a Letter of Agreement between Florida State University (Reubin Askew School of Public Administration and Policy and the John Scott Dailey Florida Institute of Government). This will start the process to establish the Center. The Board directed that a formal contract now be negotiated with a signing ceremony to be planned—within a six-month time period. The Center for Excellence will be showcased at the May conference—a stand-alone session has been planned to allow the membership to hear for themselves all about the exciting plans.

2007 Winter Institute, St. Augustine—February 8-9

Registration materials were sent to managers and assistants and also posted on the web. The Winter Institute registration is capped at 80 participants so be sure to sign up early. We have already received 75 registrations so fax or send in your registration form now. The Winter Institute is also limited to managers and deputy/assistant managers.

The Winter Institute will focus on “systems and critical thinking”, led by Dr. Ray Jorgensen of the Jorgenson Learning Center. Dr. Jorgensen’s work on systems thinking has been discussed in the book, The Fifth Discipline, by Peter Senge. This year’s program will begin Wednesday evening, February 7, with a reception. Class begins early Thursday morning with an overview and keynote address by Dr. Jorgensen. Several JLC associates will assist, and there will be a good deal of interaction. Cost to attend is $325 for the one and a half-day session, which includes continental breakfasts and lunch on Thursday.

2007 Annual Conference – The Challenge of Change: Creating and Sustaining Leadership Capacity

Several more sessions and workshops have been confirmed since the last newsletter. Back by popular demand will be Susan and Peter Glaser who will present the “Hardwiring Teamwork” ICMA University Workshop. This half-day workshop will be offered on Friday afternoon at an extra cost. A detailed description of the workshop will be in the registration materials; it is surely one not to be missed. Also added, is an ICMA pre-conference session on “Active Living Leadership.” This session is free, so if you can get to Miami early enough on Wednesday, plan on sitting in. The Career Development Luncheon on Thursday has been firmed up and it will feature a panel of city and county managers who will talk about career transitions, career planning/moving up the ladder, managing in a small community/large community and balancing family/personal lives. As previously announced, the keynote speaker for the opening session is Bill Strickland. FCCMA has heard that he routinely receives standing ovations for his story. The Saturday speaker has not been confirmed yet, but it will be someone outstanding. Friday night’s ever-popular social event will balance out the program. Registration materials will be mailed in early February and posted on the web-site.

FCCMF Annual Conference Assistant’s Scholarship

The FCCMF annual Conference Assistant’s Scholarship is designed to allow public administration students and entry-level city and county management professionals interested in continuing their academic and professional development as Professional Public Managers to attend the annual Conference. The Scholarship is awarded to individuals once per lifetime. B. Harold Farmer Scholarship Program

The B. Harold Farmer Scholarship Program information was mailed to student members and universities on October 25, 2006. The recipient will receive a $2,500 scholarship and all related costs of attending the 2007 Conference. It is also a great networking opportunity. Students must be enrolled during the summer or fall semester of 2007 and pursuing a public administration or related degree at a Florida university. For more information or questions, contact Lynn Lovallo at llovallo@flicities.com.

2007 Awards Program

The FCCMA Board of Directors approved an annual awards program developed by the Awards Committee. FCCMA’s program will be similar to ICMA’s, and it will also include information on the scholarships offered through the Foundation. A brochure is being developed and will be sent out in January. Please let us know the year you joined FCCMA (look on your certificate, if you’re not sure) and e-mail Carol Russell with the year. Her e-mail address is crussell@flicities.com. One of the awards to be given is for years of service; this is not data that has been kept by FCCMA in the past. Your help with this is greatly appreciated. Thank you to all the members who have responded to the e-mails to update the year they joined FCCMA.
