President’s Report
Lee Feldman, City Manager, Palm Bay

I would like to thank the membership of FCCMA for the opportunity to serve our association as your President. If you had the chance to attend the conference, I know you found it thought provoking, stimulating and fun. Our speakers and programs, such as Senator Bill Bradley, former Governor Reubin Askew, Regional FEMA Administrator Mary Lynne Miller and Sandy, Oregon City Manager Scott Lazenby were dynamic and complemented the many concurrent sessions. Please plan now on joining us in Doral next year!

This year will be exciting. I have set out three major goals for us to undertake and achieve:

- Continuation of the establishment of the Center for Excellence
- Creation of an outreach program to high school seniors in conjunction with the Florida League of Cities “Know Your Government Week”
- Formulation of an on-line ethics program in support of the ICMA Code of Ethics.

We will be busy this year as we assist in the education of the public in Hillsborough County and other communities in Florida, which will entertain discussions on their respective forms of government. FCCMA’s reputation as the promoter of good local government in Florida will continue stronger than ever.
Stay tuned for news on our exciting programs such as the Winter Institute and October Symposium.

I encourage you to be active in our association and join a committee today. For more information on committees please contact your District Director or Lynn Lovallo at llovallo@flcities.com.

Let’s make this a great year!

Foundation Update

Scholarship Winners

What a year for scholarships! The pool of candidates was outstanding, and the selections were difficult. FCCMF is proud to announce that the B. Harold Farmer Scholarship was awarded to Shington Lamy, a Florida State University graduate student. Shington works in the Leon County Administrator’s office. The selection committee was so impressed during the oral interviews, that they awarded two reimbursable expense stipends and a complimentary conference registration to the two runners-up: Nicole Blanton and Kevin Verro. Nicole is a student at Florida Atlantic University, and Kevin is a student at the University of Florida.

Five Assistants’ Scholarships were awarded this year to: Abby Ross, Florida Atlantic University; Suzanne Sherman, Management Analyst, Palm Bay; Ryan Spinella, Executive Assistant, Longwood; Cherrise Wilks, Management Intern, Jacksonville; Sara Wolfenden, ICMA Administrative Fellow, Sarasota. The Assistants’ Scholarships provide a complimentary conference registration, $500 travel stipend, and complimentary dues for Fiscal Year 2007.

Congratulations to all!

Contributions and Special Events

The Foundation had a record-breaking year thanks mostly to Past-President Whitson’s bike ride. The final tally showed he raised over $17,000. The Foundation supports the scholarships, the MITs, support for professional management, the Winter Institute and Symposiums.

This year two new events were tried as part of the conference. Four companies were selected (after they submitted applications) to present a successful municipal partnership story at the conference. The four companies were: Code Red, American Medical Response, Johnson Controls, and Charter Schools USA. Their participation is greatly appreciated, and the FCCMF received $20,000 in donations.

The other event held at the conference to benefit the Foundation was the Wednesday night Casino function. Members played games with fake money, and at the end of the evening used that money to bid on items being sold at auction. Everyone had a good time, and the grand prize of $1,000 (raised from donations from sponsors) was contributed back to the Foundation.

The Beginning of My Career in Local Government
By: Ana Motie, Tri-City/FCCMF Intern
The purpose of the Tri-City Management internship was to “introduce a student to local government” and provide a meaningful work experience. The introduction was taken from the perspective of “City Management,” which meant completing Management level projects. I was afforded the opportunity to lead projects, make recommendations, and participate in the redevelopment process of all three Cities. The nature of most of the assigned tasks was City redevelopment or response to the Growth Management Act (GMA). The fire impact fee assignment as a method of alleviating the financial impacts created by new developments; or drafting a small-scale text amendment application (GMA assignment) are examples of redevelopment and GMA projects I worked on.
The most valuable aspect of this Internship was the opportunity to witness the redevelopment process from beginning (inception of a CRA) to end (starting construction). The process began in Daytona Beach Shores where they are implementing a Community Redevelopment Agency (CRA), ironing out details with the County, identifying blighted areas, and creating a budget for the CRA. Port Orange is at the step of acquiring land and gathering design ideas for the redevelopment district through a series of meetings. There, I learned about the process and politics associated with removing mobile home subdivisions and relocating historical homes. Currently, South Daytona is in the process of approving site plans and clearing land for future redevelopment projects. Seeing the redevelopment process from several stages and points of view was an important learning opportunity.

As a result, I learned of the challenges (and possible solutions) facing growing, built-out and beachside communities during redevelopment. Also, I have acquired both project management and planning skills. I learned to read site plans including landscape, utility and construction plans.

Site plan reading entailed learning various Florida Statues and the City Land Development Codes to the extent that I was able to interpret, apply and speak intelligently about the information with the public, contractors, and other agencies inquiring about the City’s redevelopment projects. Some of these groups included local condominium associations, contractors and construction companies.

The most interesting subject was beachside development. The Florida Department of Transportation (FDOT) regulations directing condominium beachside construction can be pretty demanding as well as very technical. The most enjoyable aspect of the internship was learning how to put together a walkable community. Through seminars and conversations with fellow planners, I am able to make informed decisions regarding appropriate land uses, road and sidewalk design standards for maximum use and generally how to maximize the use of most land areas (Town Centers versus Commercial developments).

At each City, I learned three different management styles and how to coordinate projects. I worked with groups of employees, department heads, and council members. The time spent working with all City staff offered me the opportunity to fine-tune my mediation and motivation skills. I also worked with private organizations and the Housing and Urban Development Florida State Office coordinating projects through meetings, correspondence, and presentations where information is exchanged. My time spent with assisting in the development and completion of projects during the 2004 and 2005 emergency response efforts was unforgettable and a true introduction to local government.

My experiences are definitely valuable and can be translated to a position in either the private or public sector. I am very grateful for the opportunity you all have made available. Thank you.

Note: The FCCMA/FCCMF have agreed to participate in a second tri-city internship. Palm Bay, Satellite Beach and Titusville will have an intern rotate through the three cities, using the format Ana experienced. FCCMF funds the intern’s participation at the ICMA Conference, the FCCMF Winter Institute, the FCCMA Annual Conference and symposiums.
